COURSE AIM

Our HNC course is for people employed within Engineering companies and as such, is taught with a particular focus on application into the workplace. It will develop learners' knowledge within a variety of engineering fields, vital for their role and progression within their employment. The course develops mathematical, scientific, and logical thinking skills, learning the theory that underpins their day-to-day work, better equipping them to tackle an array of engineering problems in different ways and developing their ability to operate at a high level.

COURSE DELIVERY

The course is delivered one day per week over 21 months (70 days) from September each year.
